Re: Defamation on the Internet

Dear Sirs:

I am a lawyer representing Mina Mar Group Inc. of Toronto, Ontario and Hard to Treat Diseases Inc. (public trading symbol HTDS). It has come to my clients' attention that you have been making numerous libellous and disparaging commentary on publicly viewed web sites on the internet.

My clients are demanding that you cease and desist from broadcasting, printing or publishing such libellous content about them, that you remove all libellous content from all publicly viewed media, including the internet and further that you apologize to my clients for your libellous and defamatory material.

If you do not act in accordance with this letter then my clients will seek court orders in the Netherlands, Canada and the USA for an injunction and for damages. My clients have been active in retaining lawyers in any jurisdiction or country from which any defamatory commentary and material is disseminated. They have been successful in obtaining a number of judgments and damages awards against parties such as you and they are determined to repeat their efforts in order that you cease and desist from authoring wilfully false and misleading commentary about my clients.

My clients' business and reputation have been irreparably damaged as you continue to spread such libellous and defamatory statements and material. We cannot allow you to continue.

If you refuse to comply with our demands within two weeks of the date of this letter, my clients will have no choice but to commence legal action against you. You will be liable for all damages, lawyers' costs and court costs.

Kindly govern yourself accordingly.

Yours truly,

Frederick Simon Hawa
